III. CTE COURSE REVISIONS

A. ARCHITECTURE I, MIKE CERCONE/MARK SCHWARZ

B. ARCHITECTURE II, MIKE CERCONE/MARK SCHWARZ

C. DRAFTING, MIKE CERCONE/MARK SCHWARZ

Mike Cercone, Masuk High School CTE Teacher, shared three course revision proposals along with one textbook proposal. Revisions to Architecture I, Architecture II and Drafting all need to be done. These courses were last written in 1998. The curriculum needs to be re-written updating all existing units. There are many units that need to be added to update these courses to comply with the standards that now exist. New units need to be written from the CTE standards. New units also need to be written for the usage of a computer with both 2D and 3D drawing. Recommended resource is Technical Graphics Communications by McGraw-Hill, which can be used in all CAD classes: Drafting, CAD, Architecture 1 & 2, Pre-engineering, 3D printing. It will also be used by independent studies that work on CAD. Mike Cercone currently uses this book at Housatonic Community College. It has excellent instruction on all drawing styles covered. This book covers all CTE standards that are required in a CAD class. The text allows for students to be innovative problem solvers. Each chapter in the text covers a different style of drawings. Students will need to use inquiry based learning to learn how to develop the different styles. The book has many drawings that students will need to solve using various problem-solving techniques. Requested is a class set of 25 books at $212.75 each plus shipping = $5,574.51.

A motion was made to move this Technical Graphics Communications by McGraw-Hill Resource to the Board of Education for approval.

Motion: Jim Agostine

Motion to move resource to Board of Education for approval.

Second: Jamie Sherry

Vote: Unanimous

The meeting adjourned at 4:35 pm.

Curriculum Alignment Review Form

Subject Area	French & Spanish 1 Honors	Date	November 2015
Vertical Team Members	Leigh Barone, Jayson Castillo, Joel Castillo Jesse Caron, Lillian Cicvara Kasi-Ragan Kastelein, Doris Lacayo, Trish Pagel, Olivia Pruszko, Lisa Peterson, Anna Richa, Anne Spoerndle

Respond to the following questions as they apply to your proposal.

Part A: Curriculum Information and Connecticut Standards

How does the existing curriculum compare to the current Connecticut Standards?

The content and skills in the existing curriculum is aligned with ACTFL standards. The American Council for Teachers of Foreign Languages recently approved World Readiness Standards (April, 2015) The district does not offer an honors level 1. An honors level of French & Spanish 1 would provide students with activities and supplemental materials to achieve at the advanced level as described by ACTFL's Can-Do statements for novice learners.

What revisions are needed in order to align them?

Differentiated instructional activities, supplemental online resources, and assessments are needed for honors level work.

Part B: Curriculum Analysis

How does the analysis of student data (including student work) demonstrate the need for curriculum revision?

Student Work examples Summaries Skill measurements reveal a range of abilities in both speaking, writing, reading, and listening. Review of student work indicates the potential of individual students for honors level work.	Student Assessments – formative, summative Formative exams from high school level 1 courses. Midterm and final exams.

Part C: Curriculum from Other Districts

How does the analysis of documents from other school districts demonstrate the need for curriculum revision?

District Greenwich Public Schools	Curriculum Exemplars Curriculum is different for A & B strands, including different course expectations.
The addition of honors level 1 at the high school will provide advanced work for students: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● who were unable to begin a language at the middle school level (transfer students, home-schooled students), and ● who want to begin to study language as an upper classman or as freshman (but may be reluctant to do so because of the effect of leveled courses on GPA).

Course Title	Ethical Arguments in Fiction and Non-fiction
Subject Area	English - Honors	Grade Span	12
Proposal Author(s)	Firmender/Segall	Date	10/2015
Course of Study	New	X	Revised
	Semester	X	Full Year

Respond to the following questions as they apply to your proposal.

Part A: Course Information

Rationale for Requested Curriculum Work

As we developed semester courses for College Prep Seniors, it became apparent that the same structure would benefit our Honors Program. Anticipating the CT High School Reform Act, students will be required to take another year of Humanities and this course can help fulfill that requirement at the Honors level. When we surveyed Juniors and Seniors about possible senior courses, 41% responded that they were interested in Ethics and Philosophy.

Provide a narrative description of the course.

This semester course will expose students to ethical arguments and how these arguments are illustrated in both literature and nonfiction texts. Students will examine current ethical issues and evaluate opposing arguments. The texts studied will range from short stories and dramas to essays and articles. The core text, Contemporary and Classic Arguments, provides analysis of ethical arguments with relevant articles and instruction on how students can best formulate their own positions. Classroom discussions, debates, Socratic circles, and oral presentations will require students to develop the critical speaking and listening skills inherent in college-level seminar courses. Writing assignments will include reflection papers, ethical argument essays, and discussion questions/notes on readings.

Describe any prerequisites for taking this course and how this course fits in a sequence.

Recommendation into Honors English from previous year's teacher.

If this is a revision to a course, what data (quantitative/qualitative) contributed to the need for a revision?

N/A

STEP 1N
Curriculum Proposal, pg.2

Can the existing school facility/schedule accommodate this change? Require any additional staffing?

Yes, we can accommodate this change with no additional staffing.

In developing this course, please cite the research and sources consulted in designing this proposal.

Variety of college texts for Philosophy and Ethics
Stanford University: "Does Teaching Ethics Do Any Good?"

Part B: How does your Curriculum Proposal meet the mission of the district?

The mission of the Monroe Public Schools is to ensure that all students reach their full potential as innovative thinkers and responsible citizens through a challenging, inquiry-based curriculum delivered by skilled, dedicated, and engaging educators.

Provide evidence for each of the following:

Standards

READING INFORMATIONAL TEXTS: RI.11-12.1-7
READING LITERARY TEXTS: RL.11-12.1-10
WRITING: W.11-12.1-2, W.11-12.4-8
SPEAKING AND LISTENING: SL.11-12.1-6

Challenging/Relevant

The ethical subjects throughout the course are challenging and require our students to understand and then compose complex arguments in both written and verbal form. Each of the units of study addresses ethical issues that students have already or will soon face in their own lives. Students will be required to reflect on their own experiences and then apply the experiences of others when developing cogent arguments.

Inquiry based

Ethical Arguments have always been based in an inquiry structure. Students will be required to start their study with relevant questions and then explore those questions through research, reading, and class discussion.

Technology

Technology will be embedded throughout the course, with student work required on google docs and presentation applications.

Part B: Resource Information

Rationale for Requested Resource

These texts provide the course with ethical arguments that will support discussion and research projects. The central text (Contemporary and Classic...) is broken up into ethical arguments and supports student learning with instruction on how to structure effective arguments and related essays and other texts. The dramas (Medea and Hedda Gabler) have been used for decades as classic examples of ethical decisions-making and fit perfectly with the modern writing included in the central text.

STEP 2
Materials Proposal, pg.2

Why is this resource needed? Include an explanation of how the text relates to the proposed course of study.

These resources support the study of ethical argument and provide material on how to best structure students' own arguments.

WRITING: W.11-12.1-2, W.11-12.4-8
SPEAKING AND LISTENING: SL.11-12.1-6

Challenging/Relevant

The material in this course requires students to critically reading a variety of challenging texts and to use their writing and discussion skills in analysis and evaluation. High school seniors are on the precipice of perhaps their most exhilarating and frightening journey: leaving home for the first time. All the texts in this course have a young protagonist who is finding meaning outside of their home and making life changing decisions on a daily basis.

Inquiry based

The curriculum of this Senior Elective requires students to ask constant questions of themselves, their peers, and the texts themselves. Students will be addressing essential questions throughout the semester, using them as the basis to electronic blogs, formal analysis papers, and class presentations.

Technology

The course requires students to utilize technology for presentations, blogging, research, and formal literary papers.

Texts	Unit One: Introduction: Why travel? To introduce the essential question that serves as the basis of our exploration of travel literature, students will participate in an inquiry-based lesson. Students will be presented with various articles, song lyrics, videos, poems, and pictures that highlight different motivating factors for travel. Students will respond to each group of artifacts through writing and small group discussion, and will ultimately be asked to create an essential question that addresses the ideas generated in their written and oral reflections. "Why travel?" is a question that is going to be revisited throughout each unit of study in this course, yet the conclusions will always be different. Unit Two: The American Spirit of Travel Into the Wild: Jon Krakauer Throughout the reading of this informational text, students will focus on the ideas of self-discovery, the values of the individual vs. those of society, Transcendentalism, and the impact relationships have on individuals. Students will also focus on how travel influences these ideas. Throughout their reading, students will participate in whole-class and small group discussion, compose literary responses to essential questions, as well as participate in individual or small group presentations. The culminating assignment for this text will be to research and write a literary analysis paper focusing on how Transcendentalist ideas are explored throughout the text.

Unit Three: Travel to Discover Our Roots

Catfish and Mandala: Andrew X. Pham

In this nonfiction text, Andrew Pham documents his search for his roots while delving into questions of family, home, and cultural identity. Students will focus on broad questions of what is home, where do we fit, and how one finds oneself through travel. A special focus will also be paid to solo travel.

Students will also read informational articles about Vietnam and war, which is when Pham's family escapes to America. To promote a better understanding of the modern Vietnam that Pham encounters, short video clips will be utilized throughout the reading

Unit Four: Women Travellers

A Room with a View: E.M. Forster

The Best Women's Travel Writing: True Stories from Around the World: Lavinia Spalding

This unit pairs E.M Forster's classic novel of a young Englishwoman discovering herself abroad with a modern non-fiction anthology to highlight the female perspective and experience while traveling. Throughout their reading, students will participate in electronic reader response journals that will develop the skills of summary and analysis of text. These journals will be used for individual assessment, as well as to generate whole class discussion, focusing on the female perspective and experience, self-discovery, solo vs. companion travel, and the importance of humanitarianism through travel.

Unit Five: Literature Circles

Literature circles: Students will choose a book from a teacher-generated list and engage in reading, discourse, and writing. Titles may include: A Walk in the Woods, A Moveable Feast, On the Road, and Travels with Charlie.

Writing: Literary criticism essay.

Film:

Everything is Illuminated- paired with Catfish and Mandala

Assessments (please pair with appropriate texts)	Unit One: Narrative Writing: What kind of traveler are you? Your concept of yourself as a traveler. Do you see yourself as a traveler, why/why not? Where have you been, want to go? Unit Two: Literary Essay The culminating assignment for this text will be to research and write a literary analysis paper focusing on how Transcendentalist ideas are explored throughout the text. Unit Three: Multimedia Project Students will be given financial and time, but no geographical, restrictions. Students will choose their travel routes (must include at least 5 countries), research each site, diary their experiences, include photos, historical or cultural information, and personal reflections and/or lessons learned about themselves and their world. What will you eat in each place? Where will you stay? How will you travel within the country? What sights will you see? "Buy" plane tickets. Unit Four: Compare/Contrast Essay Students will compose a formal compare/contrast essay juxtapositioning Lucy Honeychurch from A Room with a View with one of the subjects from the Women's Travel Writing Anthology. Unit Five: Independent Reader's Journal Students will complete an independent reader's journal about the subject/theme of their chosen Book Club text.
